FOUNTAIN SUITES

PROJECT

Their puristically clear lines implemented at Fountain Suites set a striking example of contemporary architecture. At the same time, the four-storey ensemble does not force into the fore in front of the existing buildings. Light floods into the interior through wide, floor-to-ceiling glass fronts, opening up the rooms to the spectacular panorama. Everything appears in a bright, friendly, clearly structured and exquisite way. Individual floor plans allow for long viewing axes and the spacious living, kitchen and dining area offers space for enjoying personal preferences.

EQUIPMENT

The imposing mountain landscape of the Salzkammergut region and the picturesque Traunsee lake are the leitmotif for an exclusive interior design that combines luxury, elegance and naturalness. STEININGER.DESIGNERS use clear forms, high-quality materials and refined details, in order to create a homely ambience offering style, flair and all comforts: Dark tinted components and wall coverings as well as the floor made of Trapa oak provide warm accents to light walls. Mirrors and smooth surfaces reflect the light and bring nature inside. Linen curtains caress the windows and, if necessary, protect against prying eyes.

The bathroom floor is made of pure natural stone. In addition, bronze-coloured fittings by Vola and sophisticated details made of powder-coated steel set shimmering highlights. The freestanding luxury bathtub from the Dutch designer brand Cocoon turns bathing into a wellness experience. The interior is crowned by a Steinger design kitchen and corresponding furniture selection from renowned international brands.
